Biography:

Ekū was born in one of the mountain-side hill villages some years ago. None of the other creatures know quite how old he is, but he maintains the look of a young Sunbear. His physical appearance hides a great deal of inner wisdom. Ekū has explored much of his homeland and has studied the wilds beyond his mountain with great eagerness. He is incredibly observant and never misses an opportunity to satisfy his neverending curiosity about his world.

Ekū feels deeply connected to the Earth and believes in the power of harmony and balance. He can sense when things are wrong or when someone needs help. Ekū enjoys conversation and thrives on communicating his ideas. Unfortunately, some of his fellow village-dwellers don't share his enthusiasm for discussion and as a result, Ekū can often feel isolated from the rest of the villagers. While he is very popular and enjoys friendly relationships with the locals, he yearns for deeper connections with them at times. As such, he relishes the chance to meet new faces and make new friends.

Ekū is incredibly ideas-driven but he doesn't always possess the practical skills to back up his plans. He needs to be around hands-on characters, who can help him bring his ideas and dreams to life.
