

Gullius

Name: Gullius

Age: 2

Sex: Male

Wingspan: 140cm (avg:130-150cm)

Length: 55cm (avg:54-60cm)

Weight: 700g (avg:690-1440g)

Eye Colour: Yellow/black with an orange eye-ring

Beak Colours: Brown/black, marked with a red spot underneath

Feather Colours: Mottled brown/grey with white spots, black tail feathers

Leg Colour: Pink

Scars/Markings: Optional beak mark

Role: Entrepreneur (ESTP)

Endangerment level: Red

Character Traits:

- Bold, energetic
- Highly intelligent
- Practical - likes to get things done
- Spontaneous - very easy to like
- Sociable - a natural group leader
- Impulsive, tendency to be unstructured in his approach - seizes the moment without always fully considering the consequences

Biography:

Gullius hatched two winters ago on a remote clifftop gull roost in North-East England. He lived with his mother Heras and father Larus as a chick, both of whom protected and cared for him as attentive parents. As a young bird, he has spent the majority of time with his nursery flock, overseen by the adult males of his brood. It was here he learned vital skills for adulthood such as flight and communication. Gullius is now shedding the last of his second winter plumage, signifying his transition into young adulthood, although it will be a couple more years before he develops his full adult plumage.

A bold youngster, Gullius enjoys pushing boundaries and diving into situations, sometimes without fully considering the consequences. This can create some social fallout with his peers, which he doesn't always bargain on. As a naturally sociable gull, this bothers Gullius at times. However, he's a natural risk-taker and nonconformist and can be defiant in his pursuit of action and adventure.

It's hard to dislike Gullius as he is still very young and has a lot to learn about seagull mastery. His originality and willingness to explore a range of solutions makes him a keen problem-solver and a very useful gull to have around. For Gullius, life is an exciting ride, full of adventure and surprises, and he needs to develop his emotional maturity as well as his ability to plan for the longer-term. He will need to develop these skills to successfully navigate life once he embarks on his solo journey away from his nursery flock.